

SHORT COMMUNICATIONS

AN UNUSUAL SPECIMEN OF THE EOCENE WHALE REMINGTONOCETUS
(CETACEA, MAMMALIA) FROM KUTCH, INDIA

D. P. DAS<sup>1</sup>, SUNIL BAJPAI<sup>2*</sup>, J. G. M. THEWISSEN<sup>3</sup> and V. P. MISHRA<sup>4</sup>

1. GEOLOGICAL SURVEY OF INDIA, KOLKATA 700016, INDIA

2. DEPARTMENT OF EARTH SCIENCES, INDIAN INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY, ROORKEE 247 667, INDIA

3. DEPARTMENT OF ANATOMY, NORTHEASTERN OHIO UNIVERSITIES COLLEGE OF MEDICINE, ROOTSTOWN, OH 44272, USA

4. GEOLOGICAL SURVEY OF INDIA, LUCKNOW 226024, INDIA

ABSTRACT

An unusual specimen skull in tight occlusion with left and right mandibles of the middle Eocene whale Remingtonocetus harudiensis from Kutch, western India, is described. The specimen adds significantly to our knowledge of the skull and mandibular morphology of this important taxon.

Keywords: Cetacea, Eocene, mammal, Kutch, India